

Departments

The School has two departments: the Department of English Language and Literature and the Department of Translation and Interpreting. Founded in 1944, the Department of English Language and Literature has been one of the premier Chinese institutions of higher learning in the study of English language and literature. It trains students to become well-qualified professionals with good command of English language and specialized knowledge in English and American literature, linguistics and applied Linguistics, and English-speaking country studies. For more than half a century, it has made outstanding contributions to English teaching and research in China, and represents the nation's highest level in this field.

The Department of Translation and Interpreting was founded in 2007 and has developed rapidly in response to the country's growing needs for translation professionals. It offers training in translation, interpreting, cross-cultural communication, and translation theories. The Department is especially known for offering extensive practices in real-situation translation and interpreting in the arts, humanities, and social sciences. It aims to increase students' English proficiency, knowledge of Chinese language and literature, and competence in translation and interpreting.

The School has eleven research centers: Center for English and American Literature, Center for Chinese American Literature, Center for Linguistics and Applied Linguistics, Center for Translation and Interpreting Studies, American Studies Center, British Studies Center, Australian Studies Center, Canadian Studies Center, Irish Studies Center, Inter-Cultural Studies Center and Center for the Study of Overseas Chinese.

Graduates and Alumni

The School's graduates have proved highly competitive in careers that range from foreign affairs and international trade, to cultural exchange and international communication, and teaching of English as a second language. For the past 70 years, the School has educated nearly 10,000 qualified English speaking professionals, many of whom have become major figures in Chinese diplomacy, foreign trade, journalism, translation, and education. Among the notable alumni are Minister of Foreign Affairs, Minister of Commerce, spokesperson of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, China's chief representative at the UN and WTO, ambassadors to the United States and Great Britain, director of the Xinhua News Agency, president of the Bank of China; TV producers and anchors; and university professors.

Distinguished Alumni

Jiang Enzhu Former ambassador to the UK	Tang Wensheng Member of the Chinese People's Political Consultative Conference	Li Zhaoxing Former Minister of Foreign Affairs	Huang Youyi Former Vice President of China International Publishing Group
Zhang Yesui Vice Minister of Foreign Affairs	Fu Ying Chairperson of the Foreign Affairs Committee of the 12th National People's Congress	Li Baodong Former Permanent Representative of China to the United Nations	Jin Liqun President of Asian Infrastructure Investment Bank
Zhu Ling Editor-in-Chief of China Daily	Yang Lan A former hostess of CCTV (China Central Television)	Xu Gehui (Olivia) A former hostess of CCTV and Phoenix TV	Sun Ning Senior interpreter with the Ministry of Foreign Affairs

School of English and International Studies
Beijing Foreign Studies University

北京外国语大学英语学院
北京西三环北路2号 100089
<http://seis.bfsu.edu.cn/>

Overview

The School of English and International Studies is a top Chinese institution for the teaching and research in English language and literature and is ranked by the QS as one of China's top ten universities for these two subjects. It is also one of the first schools of English in China authorized by the Ministry of Education to offer PhD degrees. Outstanding accomplishments in teaching and research have made it the "flagship" department of the University and a national leader in the study of English language and literature.

Dedicated to educating students by the highest standards, the School aims to build itself into the most prestigious Chinese institution of English education that is also internationally renowned. It strives to equip its students with English proficiency, critical thinking, creativity, leadership, international vision, as well as a broad range of knowledge.

The School has established study abroad programs (BA, MA, and PhD) with over a dozen internationally renowned universities in English-speaking countries. Its International Students Programme and China Studies Summer Programme have attracted a large number of overseas students.

教育理念

全人教育 人文教育
学习能力 思辨能力
交流能力 创新能力
领导能力 合作能力
心理素质 身体素质

